

SOC 109 Sociology of Education (2Units)

The structure and functions of educational institutions, especially those designed to transfer old/indigenous knowledge, the transfer of skills to produce new /modern knowledge, and the norms of social participation. Education as a social institution and a social process; the role of education in social stability and change; and the politics of education. A comparison of some educational systems. Education and socio-cultural development in Africa.